MUSIC GRAND

These Words Describe Prof. Baldwin's Recital Last Night.

The First Presbyterian Church was filled to over flowing last night to hear the eminent organist, Prof. M. C. Baldwin, of Chickering Hall, New York.

Mr. Baldwin began his programme with the toccata of old Father Bach. In choosing this composer Mr. Baldwin at once showed himself a thorough musician and masterful organist, as the intricacies of Bach's contrapuntal music are deep water for all others.

In the Romanza of his own Mr. Baldwin was heard to the delight of all, in a beautiful and expressive piece in more modern style. The accompaniment was harp-like in effect.

In the other organ numbers Mr. Baldwin displayed the rare judgment of intermingling the classics with the most popular and well known melodies. He displayed a mastery of all the resources of this wonderful instrument, which is in reality many organs in one.

Prof. Parker sang Sullivan's Lost Chord, which was very appropriate. The trio by Prof Parker and two ladies from the Greensboro Female College was very fine, and those who are partial to concerted vocal music enjoyed this number especially. It was a treat to hear Prof. Brockmann and Miss Laura Brockmann, who have contributed so much to the musical life in Greensboro. Mr. Brockmann played a brilliant fantasia of De Beriot.

Mr. Baldwin concluded the programme with a descriptive symphonic poem, introducing pastoral scenes and a mountain storm. The storm music equalled a full orchestra with all stage paraphernalia, and was realistic as nature, and no word save "Grand" begins to express the effect.

The organ recital was a great success. The basket collection amounted to about $75.

ADDITIONAL ROOM.

The First Presbyterian Will Build a Large Annex.

For a good while the officers of the First Presbyterian church have been figuring on some plan by which an addition might be made to their church structure It has been decided to construct Sunday School rooms on the north side of the building. The front of this addition will run parallel to Summit avenue above its intersection with Church street The rear will be built around, and not over, the graves in that section of the old church-yard. The rooms will be according to the most modern ideas of beauty and convenience, and the exterior will be in keeping with the architecture of the present part of the building.

Mr. O. M. Gates has for some time been working on the plans and will soon have them perfected.

PROF. BROCKMAN'S TALENT

A Traveler Who Heard Him Last Night Speaks Glowingly.

To the Editor of The Telegram:

It has been my good fortune to have listened to some of the finest violinist that this or any other country has produced, but rarely has an artist upon this, most devine of all musical instruments, more thoroughly appealed to me, as did Prof. Chas. J. Brockmann last evening in his rendering of that soul-stirring "fantasia of De Beriot" Mr. Brockmann seemed to be inspired with the feelings of the composer when he wrote the piece and in company with that was a perfect knowledge of his instrument and ease of manner. At times he seemed to almost caress his instrument and then again he would tax it to its utmost, compelling it to do his will.

I believe all regretted their inability to demonstrate their appreciation of this selection and plead for more.

Greensboro can be justly proud of having such an artist. It seems too bad though, that Prof. Brockmann should confine his efforts to such a limited field, for the world is in need of such as he and there are too few of them.

Will Still Reside Here.

In the announcement of yesterday's paper of the connection of Mr. A. B. Creech with the Geo. A. Snow Shoe Co., his territory should have read Arkansas, Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana. Mr. C. S. Watson, of this city, will continue to travel North and South Carolina for this same firm.

Although Mr. Creech's territory lies in another part of the country, his family will continue to reside in Greensboro, a fact their many friends here will be pleased to learn.

Death of Mr. Shoffner.

News was received here this morning of the death of Mr. John Shoffner, father of Mr. C. C. Shoffner, of this city, at his home near Hartshorn, in Alamance county. Deceased was about fifty-five years of age, and for many years was known as one of the best farmers and strongest prohibitionists in his county. The funeral will be conducted tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, and the remains laid to rest at Mt. Pleasant church.

Herrman Coming.

"Herrman the Great" comes to Greensboro the 5th of March. He is no doubt the leading magician before the public anywhere. His legerdemain is bewildering, amusing and sensational. He is accompanied by the musically marvelous Noses, three ladies and two gentlemen, who play on all manner of instruments with exquisite skill. All are musicians of rare ability. Their rendition of selections from popular operas is an artistic treat. In the way of a new illusion, Herrman has the present season a wonderfully weird invention which he calls "Cremation." This is his star offering and shows a beautiful young lady burned alive (cremated) before your very eyes. It is a very effective illusion and has created a big sensation in all the cities in this section of the country.

Mr. King in Raleigh

News and Observer.

Ex-Senator John L. King, of Guilford, is here in the interest of a great plan of road improvement in Guilford county. Yesterday afternoon he appeared before the Public Roads committee and made an argument in favor of the bill introduced yesterday morning to authorize the voters of Guilford to vote on a proposition to issue $300,000 of bonds to improve the public roads of that county. Mr. King is very enthusiastic about good roads and is confident that the people will vote the bonds. At present he says, Guilford is paying about $12,500 per annum for public roads, and that this levy will pay the interest on the bonds and provide a sinking fund large enough to pay off the bonds in twenty-seven years. He argues that the way to have good roads is to issue bonds and build at once on a large scale.

REVENUE BILL IN THE HOUSE.

MR. WILLARD SAYS THE COUNTIES DODGE THEIR STATE TAXES.

Amendment to Raise the School Tax Was Lost—Mr. Stubbs' Speech in Behalf of His Bill to Divide the Taxes Availed Nothing.

Special Dispatch to The Telegram.

Raleigh, Feb 28—Whitaker, of Guilford, introduced a bill empowering executors and administrators to make deeds in certain cases.

One by Smith to prevent public institutions from contracting debts without legislative authority.

The special order of the day was Stubbs' bill to give negro taxes to negro schools, and white taxes to white schools, by so amending the constitution

Smith, of Gates, declared that the bill violated the Constitution of the United States.

Stubbs spoke vehemently for the bill, which was reported without prejudice by the committee.

Judge Connor opposed the bill, and it was re referred by a vote of 65 to 37. Stubbs said that this meant the "sleep of death."

The House went into committee of the whole on the revenue bill. Mr. Willard, of New Hanover, is the father of the bill. He said that 80 per cent. of the people of the State pay taxes on less than $300 worth of property The greatest evil, he said, is the special county taxes, by which certain counties systematically avoid paying their proportion of the State taxes.

An amendment was offered raising the school tax from 18 to 20 cents.

The amendment was lost—22 to 43. Consideration of the bill will be resumed tomorrow

The Judges' Answer.

The attorneys for Judges Furches and Douglas, who are impeached before the Senate for "high crimes and misdemeanors," are now busy preparing their answers to the Articles of Impeachment, says the News and Observer,

This answer will be filed next Wednesday and will, it is understood, admit, for the most part, the facts set forth in the Articles of Impeachment touching issuance of the writ of mandamus. It will be pleaded in excuse for this mandamus however that it was in violation of neither the law nor the Constitution; that the Oyster Fund, out of which White was ordered paid, was an appropriation set aside for payment of the Shell-fish Commissioner; that the Fund was simply in the Treasurer's hands and trust, and that the court, in ordering him to pay the money, was simply compelling a public servant to discharge his duty by obedience to a legislative enactment.

This, it is said, will be THE defence of the judges in this trial.

The fifth Article, charging that the judges did, by their decisions in the "office-holding" cases, seek to destroy the acts of the General Assembly and bring the legislative branch of the government into disrepute and contempt, is of course denied. These decisions are defended, and the answer sets forth at some length the learning, from Hoke vs Henderson down to White vs. Auditor, on which it is claimed they were decided. It will be argued that under former decisions of the court these cases could not have been decided otherwise without overruling all precedents.

There is a possibility that the defence may not put on any testimony, as the material facts thus far are disputed though the interferences drawn from some of them of course are. If the judges present no evidence, their attorneys will have the opening and conclusion of the argument.

General Storekeeper and Gauger, J. M. Hornady, of Raleigh, is in the city to day stamping the whiskey which was seized by the United States belonging to one McKnight. The case has been compromised.

BOTHA SURRENDERED

London, Feb 28—The Pall Mall Gazette says that information has just been received on Downing street that Commander in Chief Botha formally surrendered to Kitchener at Maddenburg, Transvaal, shortly before nine o'clock this morning. All details had been previously arranged and Modus Vivendi settled some days before.

New York, Feb 28.—Ex Senator Evarts died this morning at his home on Fourteenth street and Second Avenue. He has had pneumonia for several days and had a relapse.

Germans Seeking to Have Their Colonies Produce This Cereal for German Markets.

According to Consular Agent Harris, the German Colonial association is soliciting the government to take steps toward introducing and protecting on a large scale the growth of Indian corn in some of the German colonies. The German empire imports about $32,000,000 worth of corn every year, the major part of which comes from the United States.

If the soil and climate of any one of the colonies should be favorable to the growth of Indian corn such a step would no doubt be of some importance to that particular colony. But should any of these colonies be able to produce the corn which grows in the Mississippi valley (which is not apt to be the case), it will be many years before the American farmer need fear competition from this source.

The Woermann line, which plies between Hamburg and Togo, charges $9.50 per ton for foreigners between these points. The North German Lloyd charges on the average $2.75 per ton from New York or Baltimore to Bremen. Often large quantities of corn from the United States are taken gratis as ballast. Until Germany has better shipping facilities with her colonies the freight on corn will amount to as much as the original price of corn per ton in America.

To make good this difference in a degree the Colonial association proposes to admit corn from the German colonies free of duty. In 1899 the government's income from the duty on corn amounted to $7,740,000. The duty on corn imported from the colonies amounted to $1,430.

MAN WITH BROKEN NECK.

Astonishing Case of Recovery—Steadily Improves Until Now He Can Stand on His Feet.

Walter E. Duryea, who has derived fame as being the only man who has actually survived a broken neck, astonished his physicians as well as his attendants at the Hotel St. George in Brooklyn the other afternoon by standing upright on his feet without assistance.

Mr. Duryea's improvement has been continuous and steady. Since his arrival at the Hotel St. George, in October last, he has never been out of doors, but has confined himself to a rigorous course of treatment that already is showing gratifying results.

The treatment has enabled Mr. Duryea to recover practically all his dormant faculties save that of walking, and the demonstration which he gave of being able to stand unaided convinced his friends that it is likely he may soon be able to get about.

Naturalists Barred from Thibet.

The class of explorers whom the ungentle Thibetan turns out of his country with more asperity than any other is the naturalist. Before Sikkam was annexed a man of science had been through the country collecting specimens of the animal and vegetable life of the little kingdom, and the Thibetans now are convinced firmly that any man who collects moths is really trying to grab territory. It is safer, says the New York Press, to cross into Thibet with a drawn sword in one's hand than with a butterfly net.

RIFLED A DRAWER.

A Thief Scooped Small Change From Mr. Tate's Place.

Thieves broke into the grain and feed store of Mr. J. A. Tate last night and rifled a drawer in his desk, in which he kept small change, of about two dollars. Mr. Tate's place of business is almost immediately in the rear of Hiatt & Lamb's grocery store, and has a back door facing the track of the A. & Y. division of the Southern. Entrance was gained through this back door and the instrument used in opening the door was an old pick which was taken from the coal yard of the Greensboro Ice & Coal Company. Once inside, the thieves seemed to bother nothing else, but went immediately to the office and opened this drawer. After securing the money they ransacked the other drawers, and scattered their contents on the floor. A bundle of January checks returned to Mr Tate by the bank, had been examined, and being found of no value, were torn in two and left on the floor. A lamp which belongs in the room had evidently been used, the thieves seemingly not caring to work in the dark.

The night watchman at the Ice & Coal Company heard a noise in one of his bins some time during the night, and on investigating, heard a man running. He fired, but failed to hit him. This man was probably not trying to steal coal, but was after the pick which was this morning found in Mr. Tate's office.

Hear Mr. Dinwiddie.

To the Editor of The Telegram:

Please announce that Rev. E. C. Dinwiddie, Legislative Superintendent of Anti-Saloon League, of Washington, D. C, will lecture at the court house sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mr. Dinwiddie is a speaker of national reputation and was influential in securing the anti-canteen amendment and other reform measures

There will be a union service of the South Greensboro churches at Westminster Presbyterian church Sunday evening. Rev. Mr. Dinwiddie will preach a temperance sermon. It will be a rare treat to hear him.

In Bad Repute.

Dr T. J. T. Battle, who is just back from Florida, is telling a good one on Mr. R. W Brooks, who is developing a big lumber business near Tallahassee. All the men with Mr. Brooks are North Carolinians, noted for their straight habits. They have made a rule to fine a member of the camp five cents for every indiscretion in the way of a bad word or an improper joke. Dr. Battle says all the boys have succeeded in keeping a clear page but the "Old Man." He, the Doctor says, had 40 cents charged against him. His friends here are pained at Brother Brooks' bad name down in "Gorgy."

Couldn't Cheer.

Last night Dr. Smith asked the vast audience assembled to hear Prof. Baldwin not to cheer, as such was not becoming in a church house. This injunction was obeyed with equaminity until, in response to a request, the organist gave "Dixie." The folks didn't cheer, of course, but they wanted to alright. Capt. Neil Ellington remarked that it was the first time in his life he had ever heard "Dixie" without halloing.

Work on Express Building.

Uncle Sam Browne began work this morning clearing down the portion of the Forbis building that now stands on the ground to be occupied by the new express office, next to Southern Loan and Trust Company building. Work on the new building will be begun as soon as the ground is cleared away. It will be one story in height and will have a handsome front of pressed brick.

Fire Last Night.

The fire department was called out last night by an alarm turned in at box No. 42. The fire was found to be in the vicinity of the Revolution Cotton Mills, on what is known as the McAdoo property. A small cottage was burned, at an estimated loss of about one hundred dollars.

Rev. P. T. Klapp, of Elon College, was here today on his way to Winston.

WILLARD DEFENDS THE REVENUE BILL.

Explanation of the Chief Provisions of the Measure—The Framers Guided by a Due Regard for the Interests of all the People.

M. S. Willard in Charlotte Observer.

There has been so much ill-advised comment on the revenue bill now before the legislature that an explanation of its chief provisions may be of interest. Some large tax payers have become very nervous over certain supposed provisions which would possibly have been in the nature of double taxation, when it has been the fixed purpose of the committee to avoid just as far as possible anything in the nature of a double tax. One of the first propositions looking to this end was made by the writer, viz: that all owners of mortgaged real estate should be permitted to deduct the amount of the mortgage on their property from its assessed value when an affidavit and certificate from the tax lister was exhibited showing that the mortgage itself was listed and taxed. For certain reasons which the committee deemed good it was not thought advisable to adopt this provision at this time.

Section 1 of the revenue bill states the objects for which taxes are levied. There is no change in this from the old law.

Section 2 levies the poll tax, which is recommended to be the same as last year, viz: $1.29.

On account of the regressive nature of the poll tax, a tax which bears so much more heavily on the poor man than the man of means, we have proposed to supplement it with an inheritance tax on legacies of personal property exceeding $2,000, and an income tax which will distribute the burden of taxation somewhat more equitably. When we consider that the value per capita of property in North Carolina is only $600, and realize the vast number of our citizens who must own less than $600, we do not see how valid objection can be made in our State to an income or inheritance tax.

Section 3 levies the general property tax; 2 cents for State purposes, 4 cents for pensions, and 18 cents for schools, making an aggregate of 43 cents, the same as levied last year; the only change being that the amount for pensions is increased from 3½ cents to 4 cents and the amount for State purposes reduced from 21 2-3 cents to 21 cents.

Section 4 levies the tax on banks. This section has been changed so as to require the shares of stock in all banks to be valued by the State auditor and the State tax paid direct to the State treasurer. The auditor is then required to certify to the counties in which stockholders reside, the value of their shares, and the stockholder pays his local tax on the valuation. The tax on the shares of non-resident stockholders is paid by the bank in the county where the bank is located.

Section 5 relates to the machinery of collecting the bank tax.

The next section imposes a tax on corporate loans. There is nothing new in this tax, as it is simply the tax on personal property, which every tax payer owning any of such property has always been required to pay. It changes the method of collecting the tax, making the corporation responsible for it, and specifically states that "the bonds issued by it (i. e., the corporation) shall be exempt from all other State taxation in the hands of the holders of the same."

The same is true in regard to the tax on municipal loans. Whenever under the law the bonds of counties or cities are subject to State taxation the treasurer of the county or city is made the tax collector and the individual owning the bonds is then exempt from further taxation on them. If the owner of such bonds has been heretofore paying State taxes on them he will not be required to pay one penny additional; if he has not been paying tax on them, well—"that is another story." We have only tried to make sure of collecting the tax which the law has always levied.

The next tax is on building and loan associations, and has not been

"ONE, TWO, THREE" KILLS HIMSELF AND WIFE.

Dr. Aiken of South Carolina Makes His Four Little Children Orphans by his Own Awful Deed.

Savannah, Ga., Feb. 27.—Dr. W. F. Aiken, a leading specialist, shot and killed his wife in their bedroom at an early hour this morning. The report of the pistol awakened their little son, aged 8 years. In his night clothes and barefooted, the child ran in the street to call a policeman. When the officer entered the house he found Mrs. Aiken dead on the bed with a bullet hole through her head and Dr. Aiken with a pistol in his hand, laying on the the floor, dead. After shooting his wife he had placed the weapon to his own head and sent a bullet through his brain. The child said that he had heard his father count "one, two, three," and then the pistol shot.

It was developed at the coroner's inquest this afternoon that Dr. Aiken was about 38 years old. He was born in New York and was graduated at Yale at the age of 20 years. After graduating he was connected for a time with the health department of the city of New York, then he took a special course in diseases of the eye and ear, and then came South to settle. He married Miss Anna K. Potter, daughter of the Rev. A. C. Potter, a clergyman of New Bedford, Mass. Rev. Dr Potter was a personal friend of Ralph Waldo Emerson. A brother of Mrs Aiken, Alfred C. Potter, is now librarian of Harvard University. This brother has been telegraphed for, and will arrive tomorrow to take charge of the bodies and remove them to Massachusetts for interment.

No cause for the tragedy was developed at the inquest. It was brought out that Dr. Aiken was a cigarette-smoker to excess, and that he was of an extremely nervous temperament. Two weeks or so ago he had to have the services of physicians in what was believed to be morphine poisoning, and it was rumored at the time that he had attempted suicide, but the attending physicians said that was improbable. Lately his friends had noticed an extreme abstraction and irritability.

Dr. Aiken was devoted to science, and was an inventor of some note. He is the originator of many opthalmalogical instruments that are now in common use all over the country. He refused to patent his inventions, saying they were for the benefit of mankind. He had a very large and lucrative practice, and was in independent circumstances. Mrs. Aiken was a lady of great beauty and many accomplishments. They leave four little children.

High Point, Feb 27.—Mr. David L. Clark, the well known artist of this place, who has done so much good for the Guilford Battle Ground Company by his annual contributions of oil paintings of distinguished men, has just finished his latest picture to be donated this coming 4th of July. The subject is the late Rev. Eli W. Carruthers, D. D., pastor of Buffalo and Alamance churches, Guilford county, N. C., and a historian of "1776." Mr. Clark has never painted a better picture (it is a perfect likeness of the orignal photograh), and this work of art will be fully appreciated, especially by those who knew the distinguished son of Guilford.

Mr. Carruthers had on a "stove pipe" hat when the picture was taken, which is shown in the photograph and which looks rather unique at the present time.

Mrs. Ring, mother of Druggist Wm. A Ring, of this place died at her home in Winston this morning, of stomach trouble. Last evening Mr. Clifton Ring left for her bedside in response to a telegram. Mr. Wm. Ring left this morning.

Mr. E. D. Steele, owner of the two story brick building used by the National Bank of High Point is having material hauled for the addition of another story. When completed, the three story building will be an imposing structure for Main street.

Mr. A. V. Sapp, secretary and treasurer of Piedmont Table Company of this place, was in the street car wreck in New York, which was occasioned by the wheels striking a brick while going at a rapid rate. One man, who was standing on the platform was instantly killed, while the passengers within were badly shaken up.

Mr: and Mrs. Henri C. Turner have returned from a visit to relatives at Little's Mills.

Mrs. John A. Lindsay is confined to her room with la grippe.

Mrs. J. W. Goodman has returned to her home in Hillsboro.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 28.

The High Point Enterprise remarks:

"We were in the Senate chamber last week when the bill came up which provides for the fast mail on the Southern Railroad. Most all of the opposition came from Southern Senators. The bill carried with it appropriations amounting to thirteen millions of dollars, and this small pittance of $150,000 was all that fell to the South, and this was opposed by Southern Senators. We didn't understand it. For theory we beat the world, but when it comes to practical politics or statesmanship, if you like, we are lacking."

We should find quite a distinction between practical politics and statesmanship. But without discussing that, we remark that it must often be a struggle for a representative to stand up for what he considers a principle in the face of an appropriation of this kind, which professes to be of benefit to his own section.

A member of Congress, who is absolutely conscientious in all his actions, recently told The Telegram that he always voted against the fast mail appropriation because he believed it a mere bonus, and therefore wrong in principle. Some years ago it was, we believe, the Blair bill, which proposed to distribute large sums of Federal money to the various States for school purposes. The distribution would have brought much to the South, then sorely in need of it, but our people strongly opposed it upon the ground that it tended in some way to abrogate the doctrine of States Rights.

As The Enterprise says, the South is wedded to some theories. We are glad of this and hope it will ever be so. And we want some of those theories to continue to be ideal. But it is useless to hold on, as a mere fetish, to the doctrine of States Rights in so ultra a way as to deny ourselves some real benefits from the Federal government. There are no States Rights now. Only two things are left which Southern men may continue to do without being charged with treason. They are: to take time to be gentlemen and to cheer whenever they hear "Dixie."

WILLARD DEFENDS REV'NUE BILL

The next section provides for the tax on all corporations except such as are specifically taxed by name under some other section of the law. This, as in the cases of municipal loans, is no new tax, but we have simply taken steps to secure beyond peradventure that which has always been levied, but which in a great many cases has never been paid. Every corporation is required to make a statement to the auditor, giving only such information as will enable him to properly value the capital stock.

After this valuation is made the assessed value of the real estate is deducted and the corporation pays to the State Treasurer the State tax on the balance of the value of its capital stock. The auditor then certifies to the county in which is the principal place of business of the corporation, the value of the capital stock fixed by him and the corporation pays the local taxes in its own county. We are not able to see that there is any hardship in this or that there is any double taxation.

The next tax levied is the inheritance or succession tax. This is not a tax upon property at all, but as our own Supreme Court has expressed it in the case of Pullen vs. Commissioners, 66 N. C. Reports, it is a transfer tax "imposed on the succession, on the right of the legatee to take under the will, or of a collateral distribution in the case of intestacy." This tax is entirely in the interest of the small property owner and, as stated in the outset, is intended as an equalizing tax, as a balance wheel to adjust in some measure the unequal application of our present laws and to place the necessarily increased burden which we must carry where it can be most easily supported. A horse can carry a much heavier load if it is properly adjusted than if it is laid upon him without regard to any system of adjustment And so may a much heavier burden of taxation be borne if it is placed where it can be most easily sustained The celebrated finance minister of Louis XIV is reported to have said that the art of taxation consisted in s pucking the goose (i. e., people) a to procure the largest quantity of feathers with the least possible amount of squawking. Under our revenue laws, as they have existed in the past, we have confined our plucking to only one portion of the goose, while other portions are fully feathered and can easily surrender a portion of the feathers without causing the goose to come so dangerously near squawking point as if we continue to pluck that portion we have so regularly and persistantly plucked heretofore. The general property tax and the poll tax must be supplemented by some other tax which will fall more especially on the property of the well-to-do. If we cannot use the income tax for this purpose on account of supposed constitutional limitations, the only other tax is the inheritance tax. If we attempt to pluck still further that portion of the goose which has yielded the general property tax the squawking will very soon commence and it will bode no good to the political party which has neglected its opportunities.

The next section levies an income tax on all incomes over $1000 It ought not to be necessary in our government to attempt a justification of this tax. If the true theory of taxation is to levy taxes according to ability to pay them this is the fairest of all taxes. On account of supposed constitutional restrictions this tax yields a very small amount of revenue, but we are satisfied it will only be a few years before a different construction will be put on the laws, and then this will become a important source of revenue and another great aid in the equalization of taxation in our state.

This completes schedule A, of the revenue bill. Schedule B is devoted to license taxes. In the opinion of the writer these have no proper place in a system of state taxation, but should be entirely controlled by municipalities. It would be impossible, however, at present to deprive the State of the revenue obtained from this source and they are consequently retained in substantially the same form as they have heretofore existed.

Schedule C levies a privilege tax on railroad, telegraph, express and telephone companies. The only material change in this schedule is the privilege tax on railroads. This has grown out of the agitation started in the legislature of 1899 and will be a source of considerable revenue to the State.

In all our efforts to form a proper revenue law we have endeavored to be guided by a due regard for the interests of all the people; we have endeavored to bring property which has heretofore escaped taxation, upon the tax books; we have tried not to propose any law which will be oppressive to owners of manufacturing establishments, but we have also tried to keep before us the interests of the great number of citizens and tax payers who occupy the tenement houses surrounding the factories, in a word, we have done our best to propose a law which will work the greatest good to the to the greatest number, but we find that to most of those that have appeared before us the greatest number is number one.

PAPIER-MACHE ARMOR.

How It Is Displacing Steel at the Present Time—Ancestral Mail at Small Cost.

This is an age of imitation and stucco. The chromo and the chromo-photograph are elbowing the oil painting aside, and now papier-mache is beginning to displace steel, iron and bronze for making the armor which is supposed to have been worn by the dead but sceptered sovereigns of literature. Several philanthropic firms are now turning out armor of any and every period made out of it, says the New York Evening Post. According to the wishes of the customers, they will finish it in bright steel, silver and gold inlay, hammered brass, rusty iron or malachite.

The new goods are warranted not to break easily or to cut any unfortunate guest upon whom they happen to fall. Arranged in the hall or upon the wall of the salon, they are guaranteed to deceive the best critics, and to give all the satisfaction of the genuine suit of mail worn at Poitiers or Crecy.

People whose ancestors indulged in crusading or took part in the long wars between England and France can reproduce the ancestral mail at comparatively small cost. If necessary, you can have the breastplates worn by the Puritan and the skull-caps of Cromwell's Ironsides. The new invention has aroused the enmity of the dealers in antique armor, both ancient and modern, who declare that it is intended to ruin their industry. It may be recommended, however, to prudent housekeepers and careful mothers. A papier-mache battle-ax or a double-handled sword may be intrusted to a toddler of four without the least danger to the baby in the cradle or the cat by the fireplace. They may, however, break a window, and if inserted in the kitchen stove they will burn up, though with difficulty.

THE BLATTA ORIENTALIS.

A Monster Cockroach from the Tropics Which Has Found Its Way to England.

The blatta orientalis is about three times as large as an English "black-beetle," and is well known to sailors in the tropics as one of the many pests of ships. This tropical or eastern cockroach has been transported to the "zoo," the eggs being carried there in packing cases containing reptiles and beasts from warm countries, and has found a congenial climate in the reptile-house. All cockroaches, oriental or otherwise, are very fond of water, having, like most other loafers and vagrants, an unquenchable thirst. As the foreign cockroach flies by night, when it looks like an enormous water-beetle, it has been able to occupy an ideal home, an island full of caves, and surrounded not only with water, but by abundance of food. The island, says the London Spectator, is a big log in the center of the steamy crocodile pool. The log is full of splits and crevices, in which these monster cockroaches live, and from which they keep a bright lookout for the bits of soaked bread, bun, apple and other eatables which people who think that crocodiles are like roach, and will nibble bread, drop into the muzzles of the sleeping saurians. When a large piece of bread floats up against the log the cockroaches make up a salvage party, and, dragging it to their main cave below, make a communal feast. Numbers are caught and used as food for the insect-eating lizards, so they are to some extent a useful importation.

THEY WEAR KNEE-BREECHES.

Ex-Secretary Foster Gives Amusing Incidents of Some of Our Representatives Abroad.

Hon. John W. Foster, former secretary of state, and one of the most widely experienced of American diplomats, tells in the Saturday Evening Post interesting and amusing instances of "American Diplomats and Court Costumes." The ladies will be interested in knowing that in diplomacy extreme consideration is given to the kind of clothes which the representatives wear, In the course of his article Mr. Foster says:

"Some ministers have made themselves ridiculous by securing an appointment in the state militia, and making use of that uniform. A story is told of one of our representatives at a European court who appeared at the palace in the garb of a captain of a cavalry troop, a post he had filled at home, which led the monarchical diplomats, attracted by his metal helmet, quizzically to ask if he belonged to a fire company in America! The instructions of the department of state now in force construe the law to allow of such a departure from a simple dress as will secure our diplomats welcome admittance at court ceremonies.

"For instance, the members of the United States embassy in London appear on state occasions in knee-breeches, with metal buckles on their shoes, and in other respects in ordinary evening dress."

Fortunately, a friend advised trying Electric Bitters: and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks and am now a well man. The claim of other cough medicines to be as good as Chamberlain's are effectually set at rest in the following testimonial of Mr. C D Glass, an employe of Bartlett & Dennis Co., Gardiner, Me. He says: "I had kept adding to a cold and cough in the winter of 1897, trying every cough medicine I heard of without permanent help, until one day I was in the store of Mr. Houlehan and he advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and offered to pay back my money if I was not cured. My lungs and bronchial tubes were very sore at his time, but I was completely cured by this remedy, and have since always turned to it when I got a cold, and soon find relief. I also recommend it to my friends and am glad to say it is the best of all cough medicines." For sale by C. E. Holton.

GOBLINS, GNOMES AND ELVES.

You have read of the fays and fairies, the goblins, gnomes and elves?
They dwell here right among you. Why, we are those folks ourselves;
The round-faced pudgy babies here in your laps and homes,
We are the frolicsome fairies, the goblins gay and gnomes.
'Tis strange how people wonder and seek both fast and far
For mysteries by the million which live right where they are.

Good fairies watch o'er mortals, their innocent ways and wiles,
Sow crops of good intentions you harvest in sheaves of smiles;
They gladden the poorest houses, bring hope to the poorest hearts,
And lend men inspiration to triumph in fields and marts.
Don't we these things accomplish, when baby's magic touch
Will brighten the poorest hovel and bless its mortals much?

Of course we are full of mischief, 'tis a trait of the gleesome elves,
But grown folks lean a little to troublesome ways themselves;
We keep them alert and watchful, restrain them from over-sleep,
And sometimes even up matters by making them scold and weep;
But we later give full measure of blessing disguised in noise,
Transmuting their brighter moments to jubilees packed with joys.

Their work would flag and falter but for babes enshrined at home;
We sometimes act as magnets, permitting them not to roam,
We hold their hearts at the fireside when their bodies are far away,
And we even make hard sinners remember their God and pray;
Of course we are mites but mighty, wee folk but wondrous strong,
For we turn to psalms the sighing, and we turn the sobs to song,

Yes, we are the fays and fairies, the goblins, gnomes and elves,
Combining all their witchcraft and wily ways ourselves;
We work grand transformations, sometimes by the midnight moon,
When papas waltz in "nighties" and trot to a home-made tune.
Don't strain your eyes far-seeking for hidden elves and charms,
Here are the wee folk nestling right in your laps and arms.

I. EDGAR JONES.

The Settee's Story

By Katherine Birdsall.

"BR-R-R-RUGH!" shivered the wicker settee. "I never realized what a noise one could make rattling his bones before—it seems as if all my joints needed oiling, like the spring chair inside the doctor's office. Why—"

"What do you know about the doctor's office?" asked the white painted rocking chair, rocking violently back and forth in the wind as if she enjoyed its snap. "Have you ever seen a doctor's office, and if you have, pray what is it like?"

"Why," laughed the settee, "I was born in one—or, rather, I was born in a factory like you were, but that is so long ago that I can hardly remember it."

The cane-seated piazza chair snickered, and looked at the white rocker. while he whispered almost loud enough for the settee to hear:

"There! I told you he was an old fossil. And that proves he is weak in his memory as well as in his legs. I'm going to give the old fellow a glue pot for his birthday."

The white rocker laughed softly. "Do hush, you funny boy," she said, shaking her head at him. "He's very nice, if he is old, and he is very interesting, too. He certainly knows more than some people do."

The cane-seated chair looked properly rebuked, and nodded a "yes," although he was a chair of settee experience himself, having for a number of years held an important position in the butler's pantry. It was worth while to be a little meek if it pleased the white rocker, for every one wished to be in her favor, she was such a bright, lively little thing.

"What is a doctor's office?" repeated the settee, when he had answered a question asked by the capacious red rocker. "Why, it is a room where—"

"And what is a room?" interrupted the white rocker. Whereupon the others burst out laughing.

"Why, my dear child," cried the red rocker, "what a baby you are, to be sure. But you came here right from the factory, didn't you? Do you mean to say you have never looked in the window here? A room is a place inside of a house, sometimes as small as this piazza, sometimes smaller or larger, surrounded by four walls, with windows and doors cut through. And it is always warm like summer in a room, with soft carpet on the floor, something like the grass, and sometimes a fine crackling fire in the chimney corner."

"Like they make on the lawn with twigs and dead leaves?" asked the little rocker. "O, how lovely! I'd give anything to live in a room."

"Perhaps you will some day," said the old settee. "The only trouble is that you feel the cold so when you are out again. Well, as I was saying, the doctor's office is a big room, with a little waiting room off of it. I went right to the waiting room from the factory, and I stayed there for a long time. I was used by all sorts of people, and sometimes one would lie down upon me and take a nap."

"Humph!" remarked the cane-seated chair. "I think you would make a very comfortable bed."

"I was cushioned with green corduroy," said the settee, proudly, "and I was considered very handsome in those days. Finally the doctor, who was then only about 26—it was 18 years ago—moved me into his office, which is the room where he keeps all his medicine and instruments."

"He set his instrument case on me one day last week," said the little rocker proudly; "but it made me feel almost faint. I remember my rockers had to be cut off with an instrument called a saw, after I was painted, for the man who made me made them too long. It was dreadful!"

"Well, as I was about to say," shivered the settee, "everything under the sun sat on me from a little pickaninny baby to the general of the army. I used to get tired once in awhile and declare I just wouldn't hold another person. One day the dirtiest old tramp came in and had the impudence to sit on my fine cushions.

"I had just made up my mind to complain of a pain in my leg to the revolving chair by the desk, and then try to dislocate one of my bones and throw the tramp on the floor, when the door opened, and Bridget—the fussy old woman who would whisk every scrap of dirt off me every time she came into the room, even to digging out the holes the buttons were sewed in—opened the door, and in walked the most beautiful thing I ever laid eyes on."

"You must be blind now," suggested the cane seated piazza chair, looking at the little white rocker, whereupon she rocked more violently than ever to hide her embarrassment.

"It was a young lady who had hurt her ankle and come with her mother to see the doctor. The old tramp jumped up, and as I was the most comfortable seat in the room, they sat down. O, joyous moment! Had my arms only been flexible!" Here the old settee sighed and leaned against the green window shutter.

"Well," he continued in a minute, "when the doctor came into the room I could see that he was pleased, too. The tramp was disposed of in short order, and then the doctor talked with Miss Lynn—Faith Lynn, she said her name was.

"Many happy days for the doctor and for me followed. I had the advantage of the doctor in one way, but he could shake hands with her when she came and went, which certainly ought to have satisfied him.

"He began to grow very thoughtful, indeed, and instead of spending his leisure time in study, as he usually did, he went out a great deal. One night he came in quite late, and acted in such a queer way that I thought he had gone insane. He looked at himself in the mirror from top to toe, examined his hair, his eyes and his mustache thoroughly, and finally said aloud:

"'You're not such a bad looking chap, after all, Jack—perhaps you've a chance.'

"Then he came over and sat down on me for awhile, thinking deeply. Suddenly he jumped up, flung my cushions across the room and shouted: 'I'll do it—I'll do it to-morrow—what's that, you old duffer?' he added, turning to me. 'I must be growing crazy. I declare I thought the settee spoke!'

"I had spoken, of course, and quite freely, too, about his treatment of my cushions, but I said nothing more.

"Well, I did not see Miss Lynn for some days, and the next time she came in it was with the doctor, and they both looked so happy, and he kissed her right then and there. I could feel my green cushions almost turn red. I was so shocked. In a minute I understood, though, when they sat down together on me and discussed the date for the wedding."

The old settee stopped and cleared his throat, which had become quite husky.

"And was Mrs. Gregg Miss Lynn before she married the doctor?" asked the little white rocker, softly.

"Yes—and I held the bride on her wedding day when she felt faint and had to rest," said the settee. "Here comes Miss Phyllis, who is the image of her mother."

Phyllis Gregg, her cheeks rosy from a brisk early morning walk and her golden hair blowing kisses to them, came up the steps with her sister Dorothy, aged 12.

"See how human the chairs look, Dorothy," she said. "You could almost imagine that father's old settee had been telling stories of the times when it was young—the others seem to be turning toward it to listen."

"Isn't that funny!" cried Dorothy, her black eyes sparkling. "Phyllis, I'm going to take the little white rocker upstairs. It is so pretty and I need a rocker in my room," and she proceeded to carry it off, never noticing the groans of the settee, the pained look the cane-seated chair gave her, the approval of the old red rocker or the delight of the little white one on her way to explore the mysteries of the world.

Making Him Whole.

"It takes the glorious old west to do business," said the man with the alligator grip as he boarded the train at St. Paul. "We of the east are not in it a little bit."

"Anything to relate?" queried one of the passengers as he woke up.

"Just a few words. I traveled from New York to Chicago with a staving-looking girl. At Buffalo I was gone on her. As we reached Chicago she had set the date. I returned home, wrote her 320 love letters and came out here to get married."

"And what?"

"She decided that she would marry another. She estimated the value of my time at $500, the worth of my letters at $300 and my broken heart at $200, and drew me a check for $1,000, and here it is. Gave her a receipt in full to date, kissed her good-by, and there you are and here I am. There's but one way to do business, and the west knows all about it. Yes, check for a thousand, and how many of you gentlemen will smoke a Henry Clay at my expense?"
—Buffalo Courier.

His Latest Book.

Towne—Wright's first book was very successful. He's very proud of it, I hear.

Browne—Ah, but he's prouder of his latest book.

"Oh, has he written another?"

"No; but his first book has enabled him to acquire another, which is quite new to him. It's a bank book."—Philadelphia Press.

RATHER FAST.

Extract from a recent letter—Dear Mother: I am sorry to inform you that at the present time I am leading a rather fast life with no indication of a change of pace. Your Son, James.

ARE YOU PLUMP

or thin? red cheeks or sallow life in your step or feel your weight? are you comfortable or hoping to be so next spring or summer or fall?

One is health; the other is not-quite health.

This condition of not-quite health can be turned into health with Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

It is a pity to get in the habit of thinking of health as a thing to be hoped for; why not go for it now!

There is only one way to make strength: by food. You want appetite first, then food. The emulsion will give you food-rest, to master your food with.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

A new remedy for billiousness is now on sale at C. F. Holton's drug store. It is called Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. It gives quick relief and will prevent the attack if given as soon as the first indication of the disease appears. Price, 25 cents per box. Samples free.

When the Hair Falls Out accompanied by mucous patches in the mouth, eruptions on the skin, sore throat, copper colored splotches, swollen glands, aching muscles and bones, the disease is making rapid headway, and far worse symptoms will follow unless the blood is promptly and effectually cleansed of this violent destructive poison.

S. S. S. is the only safe and infallible cure for this disease, the only antidote for this specific poison. It cures the worst cases thoroughly and permanently.

My Condition Could Have Been No Worse. In the fall of 1897 I contracted Blood Poison. I tried three doctors, but their treatment did me no good; I was getting worse all the time; my hair came out, ulcers appeared in my throat and mouth, my body was almost covered with copper colored splotches and offensive sores. I suffered severely from rheumatic pains in my shoulders and arms. My condition could have been no worse; only those afflicted as I was can understand my sufferings. I had about lost all hope of ever being well again when I decided to try S. S. S., but must confess I had little faith left in any medicine. After taking the third bottle I noticed a change in my condition. This was truly encouraging, and I determined to give S. S. S. a thorough trial. From that time on the improvement was rapid; S. S. S. seemed to have the disease completely under control; the sores and ulcers healed and I was soon free from all signs of the disorder; I have been strong and healthy ever since.

PLANS GREAT KANSAS RANCH.

It is reported at Wichita that Frank Rockefeller is negotiating for the purchase of 140,000 acres of land in Kiowa and Clark counties, Kan., with a view to stocking it with horses and high-grade cattle, sheep and hogs, especially horses, for which he sees a profitable future.

The land is along Soldier creek, the fastest running water in the state, and which is fed by a great many springs, numbers of them artesian. At present he owns the land on both sides of the creek for over seven miles, but the area is too small for his plans. He has but few horses on his present ranch, but they have so demonstrated the adaptability of the country for giving bone and wind to their kind that Mr. Rockefeller is anxious to experiment on a larger scale. It is also said that he will experiment with poultry and animals of various kinds, including some of the wild animals of the plains. At present his ranch is stocked with high-grade Hereford cattle and sheep.

OBSERVES THE NEW COMET.

The comet recently discovered by Giovanni Ciacopini at Nice, France, in the constellation of Thetis has been observed at Lick Observatory, Cal., the last week by Mr. Aitken. It is a faint object of the eleventh magnitude, and therefore requires a telescope of considerable size to observe it. Mr. Aitken has determined the path in which the comet is moving. Its perihelion passage, or time of nearest approach to the sun, occurred on December 1 at a distance of only two per cent. smaller than the earth's distance from the sun. The plane of its orbit makes an angle of 31 degrees with the ecliptic and intersects it in longitude 193 degrees.

The present distance of the comet from the earth is some 80,000,000 miles, and the distance is increasing. The brightness is decreasing, so that there is no chance that the object will be visible without a telescope.

Postman's Busy Seasons.

It is just possible, says the Chicago Record, that the post office clerks are not sorry that Christmas comes but once a year.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

The oldest bonnet was found upon an Egyptian mummy, that of a princess who was interred about 2,000 years before Christ.

The heaviest man whose weight is recorded authentically was Miles Darden, of Tennessee. He weighed a little less than 1,000 pounds.

Chicago is still preeminently the leading port of the great lakes. Cleveland and Milwaukee were close rivals for second place.

Danger of fire from pipes, cigarettes and other means caused the mayor of New Orleans to issue an order prohibiting the presence of cotton on drays in the streets of that city at night.

Pittsburgh claims that its new botanical school building will be the only institution of the kind in the United States. The site is in the largest city park and the school is the gift of a citizen, Mr. Henry Phipps.

It has been noticed by Surgeon General Sternberg that there are fewer homicides in the army during war times than during times of peace. The average number of suicides per year in an army of 27,116 for the ten years was 17.

The weight of merchandise annually imported by Great Britain has multiplied fivefold in 40 years, averaging at present more than one ton yearly for each inhabitant. More than half the food supply of the United Kingdom is drawn from other countries at an annual cost of $25 per inhabitant.

There is a well-attended school for waiters in Vienna. The pupils are first instructed in the general principles of the art of serving at table, and when they have mastered the introductory course they are allowed to practice on two ladies and two gentlemen in evening dress who dine at one table. The "professor" watches the operation and sharply calls the waiter to account if he makes a mistake.

A PLEASING PERSONALITY.

A Charm of Manner That May Be Cultivated with But Little Exertion.

When an aged minister recently resigned his pulpit, there were many expressions of regret from persons not connected with any church. His voice and sympathetic manner had won all hearts. His successor, a more talented man, was not able to attach the people to him, for he lacked the kindly expression of interest and sympathy that gained the former minister an attentive congregation, writes Margaret Merkel, in Housekeeper.

In a little village, one Sunday evening, the people welcomed the "new minister." One of the old members said: "We have not yet been able to replace one of our good members; she was so useful and ever ready to help."

The minister, thinking of a recent death, asked: "When did she die?" The rarely useful woman had died 20 years before, and her place had not yet been filled. She was neither accomplished nor educated, only a sympathetic, good woman, of a charming personality.

A few years ago a beautiful, gifted woman was taken ill. For years she lived and fretted because of disease. Few people called to see her, or evinced the least sympathy, or desire for her recovery. She was talented, beautiful, dressed attractively, and none could speak evil of her; she was a good daughter and sister; but her excellencies seemed as nothing—because of lack of sympathy, self-control and self-forgetfulness. She regained her health, and became a cynic, seeing the world through dark glasses.

I know a young man, a chronic grumbler, who, while he realizes that he possesses one of the most unfortunate of habits, excuses himself by saying that it is his nature to grumble. His mother has fostered this idea, instead of helping him to overcome this tendency. This individual charm or power may be largely acquired, but it is not the work of chance or the growth of a day.
